How do I record a lease with USDF?

- Leased horses may be recorded with USDF in the name of the lessee. A Lease Recording Form along with the lease agreement signed by the horse owner and lessee, and appropriate fees must be submitted to USDF. The lessee will be recognized as "owner" for all USDF membership requirements for the period of the lease recording.
- If there isn't a lease agreement, the lease recording form must be signed by the owner and lessee.
- The lease recording fee is required for each new lease recorded with USDF. If the horse is being registered at the same time, the lease recording fee is in addition any registration fees for the horse.
- The effective date of the lease recording is the date that this form and fees are received by USDF.

How do I renew or terminate a lease with USDF?

- A lease recording can be renewed free of charge if received by USDF prior to the lease expiration date, by submitting a recording form with updated information and new lease agreement, signed by both the lessee and lessor, or the lease recording form signed by both the owner and lessee. Otherwise, the recording fee applies. The new effective date will be the date the updated recording form and fees are received.
- To terminate a lease prior to the end date, a new recording form must be submitted and signed by the lessor and lessee.
